

Custom Interactive Courseware

As information systems and technologies advance at a rapid pace, new and innovative training methods must continue to advance with them. Kratos ensures you are using the right technologies to maximize performance and ROI.

PC simulations, mobile applications, social learning, and gaming are just a few examples of new training methods that are maximizing training effectiveness and efficiency.

Kratos maximizes ROI and lowers TOC for your procurement dollars by delivering powerful training solutions to achieve optimal performance of the Warfighter:

- Creative training programs are engineered to reach your training targets

- Imaginative ideas that combine training methods to create practical solutions

- Innovative approaches that address all learning styles

Kratos develops Interactive Media Instruction (IMI) courseware for many different knowledge domains such as C5ISR, cyber security, system operations, and system maintenance. Clients include the Armed Forces, the Department of Education, Internal Revenue Service, as well as commercial clients such as Volkswagen, Sony and many others.

Our gaming and simulation solutions accelerate time to proficiency with effective instructional strategies and efficient access to training via mobile platforms, web-based training, and deployable mobile classrooms. We apply our team's deep experience to developing custom courses for your specific training needs.
